

ABOUT ME.

Jen Price, MS

Partner

In addition to being the mother of two busy teenage girls, Jen is an accomplished professional with over two decades of varied healthcare and system quality experiences.

She holds a master's degree in healthcare quality, a bachelor's in clinical paramedicine, and has other academic accomplishments related to quality service delivery, patient safety, root-cause analysis, investigations, adult education, and leadership.

Her unwavering commitment for quality has offered Jen the opportunity to work with many prominent organizations and governmental departments including the Ottawa Hospital, Health Standards Organization, ORNGE and the Canadian Department of National Defence. In her previous professional engagements, as both an employee and consultant, Jen has a long track record of success in collaborating and coaching inter-disciplinary teams to drive change, improvements and to meet strategic priorities.

As a member of the MorFokus team, Jen recognizes that the full breath and depth of her competencies is one of her strongest assets. She has a keen eye and innate ability to analyze and simplify complex policies and problems which give her, and her teams, an edge in leading successful consulting engagements.

As a quality expert, Jen employs a conscientious 360-degree approach that focus on understanding the problem(s), in developing and implementing aligned plans and in analyzing the results and implementing on-going quality improvements.
